Following are 3 Relationship Strengths from Gregor's Personality Profile:

- Gregor places a high value on being direct and honest when expressing thoughts and feelings.
- Gregor tends to be very goal-oriented.
- Gregor tends to be a creative problem-solver when faced with common problems.

Gregor's friends describe him as:

- Creative
- Intelligent
- Loyal
- Genuine

The one thing Gregor is most passionate about:

- Murdering everyone who works at eHarmony. I quit a long time ago but they still spam me with new matches despite my emails asking them not to. Maybe that's why some of my "matches" never responded to me. Maybe they were no longer eHarmony members. either! I want to find the head of eHarmony and split his head open with an axe. I want to kill his children. I want to say whatever I can say to finally get his attention so I will be removed from eHarmony's email/spam list. Note to FBI: I would never actually do any of this but I don't know what else to say to get their attention. Permit me my harmless fantasies of his head rotting in a paper bag.

The most important thing Gregor is looking for in a person is:

- Someone who's done time repeatedly, has numerous sexually transmittable diseases, owns a vast and varied collection of barbed wire, duct tape, pepper spray, salt, never mind salt, hydrochloric acid, that's better, oh yeah, and NAPALM, some hand grenades, a bottle of Mexican tap water riddled with dysentery, a water gun filled with 3 month old stale piss and, most importantly important, the home address of the head of eHarmony. Extra cunnilingus if she knows where his kids go to school. Note to FBI: see above I never do any of this. I just want to get their attention so they'll honor my repeated requests to stop spamming me!

Three of Gregor's best life-skills are:

- Resolving conflict
- Using humor to make friends laugh
- Achieving personal goals

Below are some of the important interests that you and Gregor share:

- Conversation
- Talk with Friends
- Learning

The most influential person in Gregor's life has been:

- Charles Manson is innocent. He wasn't at the scene of the crime, never touched the murder weapons, he's no more guilty than I would be if the entire building where eHarmony exists were to suddenly burst into flames merely because I wish it were covered in NAPALM. There's so many others though that deserve mention here also, as well as praise and heart felt thanks including Adolf Hitler, Little Joey Stalin, Mickey Mao-Tse Tung, Jenny Edie Hoover, Jack the Cow Tipper and Rudolph Giuliani, the ^{THAN I} ^{one nut} ^{surprise} psycho in the bunch.

The three things which Gregor is most thankful for:

- That someone at the FBI has a sense of humor
- That someone at the FBI will investigate eHarmony's spam tactics
- That I can go back in time and abort the births of all who work at eHarmony by killing their parents

The first thing you'll probably notice about Gregor when you meet him:

- The drool, probably. Oh wait, does that qualify as appearance? Okay, the plastic explosives strapped to my chest then. ^{That's not} really appearance since it's not actually part of my body or my permanent physical features, at least not until after they explode in eHarmony's computer room, assuming they have one and this whole operation isn't actually run out of some angst ridden teenagers' attic in Mississippi, probably lonely and gay and wishes his parents would just divorce instead of beating him all the time and ^{Raping} his sister in the front yard while the inbred neighbors cheer and wack off.

The one thing Gregor wishes MORE people would notice about him is:

- That I'd be an excellent choice to rule the world.

Gregor typically spends his leisure time:

- Plotting the extinction of the human race.

The last book Gregor read and enjoyed:

- Mein Kampf

One thing that only Gregor's best friends know is:

- I am immortal.

Some additional information Gregor wanted you to know is:

- That they're giving their money to spammers.

The things Gregor can't live without are:

- Satan
- Satan
- Satan
- Satan
- air conditioning
